Excerpt of pertinent information :

General Radescu made the following declaration: In conformance with the decision of the National Committee, the proclamation to the country was sent to the King by the Secretariat in New York, together with the draft of a Royal declaration. In regard to the Memorandum which was submitted to the Conference in Paris, there would not have been enough time to tell the King about this. It is regrettable that the text was not sent at once; certainly, it was due to the lack of a Secretariat General at that time. The Committee has taken measures to prevent this from happening in the future. The Committee declares itself unanimously in accord with the above declaration.

General Radescu made the following declaration: I regret that a personal letter of mine, which does not involve the Committee, could have been interpreted in the same sense that I considered that the Committee could not function. I declare that I am convinced, as I pointed out in the conclusion of my letter, that this Committee can work in an efficient manner.

The Committee has taken note of the declaration of General Radescu and is of the opinion that the Committee can work in an efficient manner. . . By his own declarations which he has made to the National Committee, General Radescu recognizes that he is financed by Malaxa; because of these relations, the name of the president of the National Committee was mentioned in a law suit in such manner as to injure the prestige of the president and to implicate the Committee itself. The National Committee asks the president to cease any relations, political, or financial, with Mr. Malaxa. . .

This is all the pertinent information on subject in this document.
